

Rational Unified Process (RUP)

MSI Systems Integrators' Rational Unified Process (RUP) offering was designed to present collaborative project management for implementing solutions, given any size project size and variances in skill sets. By design, RUP can be scaled and applied to our clients' environment as appropriate. MSI offers a unique approach by matching existing process to the new process through project development guides, making the transition much easier. Unique in the marketplace is MSI's ability to provide solid Rational infrastructure architecture teamed with process modeling to link business, functional and system requirements to user test cases.

Our engagements range from process mentoring, supporting infrastructure build out, to creating collaborative project management dashboards. Many of our clients choose MSI because of our flexibility to offer a collaborative delivery engagement with heavy emphasis in knowledge transfer and mentoring. This approach mitigates the risk of using new tools and methodology to deliver on-time and on-budget while making sure that adequate knowledge transfer is taking place to allow the client to own the application and ongoing maintenance once delivered.

MSI BRINGS BEST PRACTICES TO HELP FORMULATE DECISIONS

- Offering a workshop to help evaluate any special considerations that should be applied
- Providing mentoring for any process automation and maximize traceability between artifacts from requirements, testing to release, and delivery
- Supporting the full product development lifecycle
- Working with IBM to build educational components tailored to support your predefined and documented methodology

APPROACHES TO DELIVERY

Process Architecture Workshop

- Rational Unified Process with Unified Change Management

Supporting Infrastructure Implementation

- Database Server
- Storage Repository
- Application Server
- Highly Available and Secure

Collaborative Project Management

- Dashboard Reporting
- Project Visibility
- Decision Support

To learn more about MSI's Rational offerings contact your local MSI Client Executive or Software Specialist at 800.640.4674.